Subject: Re: Update on response to respondent's reply and phone conference about communication with children

Hello Miss Seipel,

I'm surprised I didn't hear back from you after my last email below in regards to this conferral that I had agreed to do with you, especially as I wanted to address the fact that Miss Brown seems to be in a clear pattern of parental alienation which is in contravention with the provisions of the Hague Convention as Miss Brown has refused to let our children have any video calls with me or their French grandparents (or anybody from their French family) for more than 3 months now.

As I mentioned in my emails to you twice below, the Hague Convention has provisions that require that the parent who abducted the children be required to preserve the visitation right or in this instance the remote 'visitation' of the left behind parent to the children which would logically be under the form of several video calls per week at the bare minimum without any supervision from Mother to ensure that the children be allowed to speak freely to their Father.

This direct and unsupervised video communication hasn't been happening for more than 3 months now and this is extremely detrimental to the well being of our children and to their mental stability in this context particularly.

Please communicate with me urgently your availability to discuss these matters on the phone as a conferral in the next few days and please provide me ahead of this discussion with the documented and detailed itinerary Miss Brown took to leave France with our children in April, including which exit point of the European border passport controls she used and at what exact time and location she crossed the French and European borders. This is crucial information that we need to have to be able to discuss this Hague matter and the nature of the removal of our children that Miss Brown conducted on French soil as a part of this required conferral between us.

Regards,

Arnaud Paris
